PREFACE.

AS it has been decided to bring the History of Agriculture and Prices to an end with the seventh volume, which is now laid before the public, some apology for the incomplete condition of the work is necessary, as well as an explanation of the great delay which has occurred in printing these pages. The fifth and sixth volumes were published in 1887, and during the last three years of his life my father was busily engaged in collecting material for the concluding part of his book. A large number of figures had been brought together, and even tabulated, when he was seized with the illness that ultimately proved fatal to him. But the series was incomplete, and though prices had been collected for several articles for every year in the period he had set himself to deal with, many subjects were but poorly represented. Among the papers that were left, no clue was found to the existence of any other figures, or to the sources from which he had proposed to draw further information. My father invariably worked alone, without assistance or delegation, and there was no one therefore who was in a position to offer any valuable opinion on the intended scope of the work. When therefore the Delegates of the University Press kindly agreed to allow me to edit the manuscript my father left behind him, two courses were open to me.

The first, which was the simpler, was to print the tabulated figures exactly as they stood ; the other was to supplement them as far as possible by further research of my own, with the ultimate object of writing some commentary on the figures, which though it could not possibly compare with the preceding volumes, might yet elucidate certain points, and assist other students to make profitable use of the great collection of historical material that these volumes contain. The former course would have had the advantage of giving the public the benefit of my father's work at once. But on consideration it seemed that this book—if of any value at all—would probably be of use for some time to come, and that therefore a few years' delay in publication would be of little consequence, if in the meantime the tables of prices could be even approximately completed. Steps were at once taken to discover whether any unpublished manuscripts existed, from which a few prices might be gleaned that would supply information for the vacant period. After a few months of disappointment—or, at best, scanty results—I had the good fortune to light upon a collection of prices which fulfilled exactly all the conditions that were required.

In the earlier volumes of the History of Agriculture and Prices the information was drawn, as is well known, chiefly from the domestic accounts of certain Oxford colleges, supplemented from the books of other foundations. For the later periods, however, these records become scarcer ; and although much was collected from the account books of private persons, deposited in the British Museum and elsewhere, it was found that more information could be obtained from published prints, such as those of Houghton. Private records eventually become extremely rare, while many newspapers of the eighteenth century supply market prices regularly, though the number of articles quoted diminishes in the later periods. There is a large and valuable collection of such newspapers in the British Museum, known as the Burney Collection, and I found it was chiefly from these that my father had collected the prices he was going to publish. With the exception therefore of a few private accounts, chiefly in the first decade or two of the century, and some corn prices from two colleges in Cambridge and one in Oxford, all the quotations that were tabulated were strictly market prices, and even these were chiefly from London. It would of course have been easy to extract numerous additional market quotations from the same collection ; but such figures should be accepted with caution, except when regulated or ascertained by law, as in the case of corn. They are frequently vague, and there is no evidence that they represent real transactions. Even where they are the figures at which actual sales took place, we cannot be sure that they represent the true average of the market ; and, worst of all, we can too often only guess what the quality of the article sold may have been. When therefore my friend Mr. Hugh C. Fairfax-Cholmeley, who had recently succeeded to his family estate in Yorkshire, invited me to come and examine the papers at Brandsby Hall, I hoped to be able to find among the deeds and other documents there some domestic accounts which might corroborate these newspaper prices. But my surprise and delight may best be imagined when I found, in addition to many other documents of great interest, an almost complete collection of receipted bills from about the year 1740, when the real founder of the family, Francis Cholmeley, began to build the manor house and started an enterprising career of agricultural improvements. The year's receipts were neatly folded up, docketed, and tied together in a bundle. They had evidently not been touched since, for as they were opened the sand fell over the table, and it was frequently necessary when transcribing them to sweep the table or blotting-pad more than once in an evening. Francis Cholmeley's son and grandson had shown the same care in preserving their receipts, though the payments of the latter had often been made by an attorney. Among the papers were found the accounts of a friend of the family, Sir Charles Buck, who had built a house at Wharram, in the East Riding. A reference in one of the receipts led me to suppose that similar documents might be found at Castle Howard, and by the kindness of the Earl and Countess of Carlisle I was able to spend a week in transcribing the more interesting accounts of that family that belonged to the eighteenth century. They are, however, not nearly so complete or useful as those of the Cholmeley family. From these sources several thousand entries were made, which not only supplied much information that was missing, but also threw additional light on the quotations already collected—in a manner not unworthy, as I hope, of the great work into which I have been permitted to insert them.

The history of the house of Howard is well known. For some three centuries they have occupied a prominent and honourable place in the history of their country; and during the period under review, one Lord Carlisle held office as Viceroy of Ireland. But this very fact renders their history less interesting on this occasion, and we can learn but little of their daily life from their accounts. With the Cholmeley family, on the other hand, it is very different. Although they appear to have been in the neighbourhood of Brandsby for many generations, and to have inherited the manor from the De la Ryvers, an ancient family reputed to have come over with the Conqueror¹, they seem to have lived a quiet life, if not exactly 'after the manner of the Zidonians.' The cause, no doubt, which prevented them from taking part in public affairs, in which so many of their neighbours, Fairfaxes, Bellasys', or Hothams, distinguished themselves, was their religion. The wave of the Reformation passed over this remote Yorkshire village with little effect, and to this day the family and some of the tenants of the estate maintain their adherence to the older form of worship. They were of course objects of continual suspicion, and the names of two appear in the 'True and Perfect Return of all Papists convicted in the North Riding of the County of York, 1716².' Indeed, when the manor house was built, thirty years after, not only was one of the rooms designed and used as a chapel, but it was thought necessary to build a secret chamber where a priest could be hidden, should the terrible days of persecution come again.

The suspicion of the Government was probably well founded, for it is evident that there was a close relationship of some kind between the Cholmeleys and the Derwentwater family. There are many documents relating to that family in the chests at Brandsby, and a Ratcliff—whose descendants, by the way, are still living on the spot—held a farm in the village in the early part of the eighteenth century. But before the rising of the '45, Francis Cholmeley had given hostages to fortune, and was busily engaged in building his house and reclaiming the moor. The Scottish invasion passed through Lancashire, to the time-honoured accompaniment of the banging of warming-pans; and beyond Lord Falconberg's subscriptions towards the defence of the country printed on p. 603, and the evidence that a large sum of money was dispatched to London for security, there is no sign in any of these papers that the country was in any other condition than that of profound peace. In 1779, however, the loyalty of the family was unimpeachable, and £100 was subscribed towards the volunteer movement of the time.

The energies of the Cholmeleys, thus cut off from public affairs, were directed towards agriculture. Francis Cholmeley went into partnership with some one in the conduct of a farm for a few years, but the obvious pleasure with which he records certain advantageous sales of stock leads one to suppose that the venture was not very successful. Be that as it may, the evidence of the accounts proves that the pursuit of agriculture was carried out with energy and method, and this conclusion is supported by independent testimony. Arthur Young, on his northern tour, naturally travelled at once to Newton, where lived Mr. Comber, so well known to readers of the Museum Rusticum, and he was unable to visit the places off the route. But in a note, on p. 457, to the second volume of the Northern Tour he writes:—

'If my time had not obliged me to leave Newton so soon, Mr. Comber would have carried me to see three Great Improvers who lie in a line from South to North to the West of East Newton. These are Francis Cholmondley of Brandsby Hall, Esq.; Charles Lord Fairfax of Gilling Castle, and Thomas Earl of Falconberg at Newburg-Hall. The following is Mr. Comber's account: Mr. Cholmondley has converted several considerable Warrens and moors into good arable, pasture and meadow, and raised very good quick-fences, with proper plantations of trees in the hedge rows, so as to create a defence for the cattle on the bleak heights; and his cultivation has been carried on with large quantities of lime which answers very well on that fresh land. I must observe that he chiefly plants the larger maples (plain and striped), and they appear in effect to suit his soil well. I must add that he has built an exceeding good house, and laid out handsome gardens, and got removed to a proper distance the church which is new built and has a good effect. When I add, that he has a fine prospect of York-Minster and the cultivated country around, I need hardly say, that Brandsbey (sic) is become one of the most improved places in the North Riding.'

These improvements are, however, rather those of the landowner than the cultivator; and it must be confessed that by the time this was written the evolution of the improving agriculturist into the landlord was complete.

From this time the interest in the accounts lies entirely round the social and domestic life of the family. We learn of their visits to Bath, to York in the race week, and occasionally to ducal houses. We read of a son sent to Isleworth or to Douay to school; of a daughter living at home or sent in search of the health she seemed fated never to procure. We learn of the deaths of certain members of the family and their funerals, and by various signs the advent of new members is foreshadowed or announced. In one period there is evidence of expenses incidental to a honeymoon. What will, I think, strike the reader of the accounts most forcibly is the quiet, steady, honourable life they all led. They consumed huge quantities of port it is true, and the ladies gambled a little at cards, as all ladies did in those days. But there was no excess, no debt after the first expenses were paid off, and apparently nothing but the best of terms with the tenants and workmen. The French Revolution would have been impossible in such a country. But they were no Squire Westerns, or Tony Lumpkins. The books entered as bought are few, but they are mostly of a high order; and if the Squire read the whole of Guicciardini, to whom he is expressly stated to have subscribed, he must have been an assiduous student.

These then are the sources from which I have taken the additional prices, and I hope that they will not only serve to illustrate the life of an English country gentleman's family of the time, but will also supply the student of economic history with information about the conditions of other persons and things. They contain an almost unbroken series of weekly prices of beef for some forty years, and I am confident that such information has never before been published. The tables of wages, more especially those in which the number of days worked per week for a year or longer, will, I trust, prove useful. Prices of tea, many of which have been drawn from the Brandsby and Castle Howard papers, have not been given in any previous volume of this History. There is also much information to be got from a study of the articles of wearing apparel, especially in that period in which the new inventions began to affect prices. In one other respect this volume differs from previous volumes. It cannot be too often insisted on that the years described in this book are cereal years beginning in October of the calendar equivalent, and the sequence of months will, I hope, remind the student of the system which has been adopted. But in order to fix dates more definitely, the day and the month on which any purchase was ordered or paid for are given in this volume wherever they can be found. The advantages of this system, which I am sure would have been adopted in the previous volumes had it been possible to do so, are well illustrated by the prices of beef and mutton. The student can easily construct for himself tables showing the monthly variations in these articles as far as the entries go, and see the way in which the price rises and falls according to the season of the year. A little study will show that the changes are periodic and, I am confident, dependent on the quantity of keep available at the time or in prospect, for, as it is hardly necessary to point out, when forage is scanty there is a tendency to hurry cattle into the market, and when grass is plentiful a corresponding inclination to hold on for better prices. In the same way the chapter on wages shows not only the changes from year to year, but also the seasonal movements in the remuneration of labour. These indications will, I hope, assist the student; and the index, which has been produced with much toil and weariness, will guide him further.

After what has been said, it will be readily understood that I am under a deep sense of obligation to Mr. Fairfax-Cholmeley for having placed his family papers at my disposal, and for the assistance he has given me generally in their study. I wish to express my thanks at the same time to the Earl and Countess of Carlisle for permission to transcribe some of the papers at Castle Howard, and to the Earl of Leicester for the loan of the manuscript copied in the second part of this volume. Mr. R. F. Taylor, of the Board of Trade, has given me material assistance in checking figures and calculations, and in copying some of the quotations of stock from the newspapers in the British Museum. Above all, I have to thank the Delegates of the University Press for their patience in assenting to the delay in publication, and for the opportunity it has given for further research—an aid which has been more valuable than a liberal endowment.

A book containing so vast a mass of figures could not of course be printed all at once. It has been necessary to prepare the work in parts, and to use the same type over again. Consequently some of these pages were printed off ten years before the index. This system has compelled me to put certain figures into an appendix, and has prevented me from correcting certain errors made when I was beginning the work. It has, however, given me the opportunity of discovering other mistakes and preparing the following table of corrections:—

The sentence on p. 3 about the Eton prices should be deleted. There are no Eton prices in this volume.

On p. 4, line 2, the sentence should read 'the account is in combs, apparently equal to four bushels,' not one bushel.

On p. 7, column 1, under Dec. 24, for 1 load @ £65 read 1 load @ £6 5/.

On p. 23, col. 4, under London—Bear Key, for Sept. 31 read Oct. 31.

On p. 35, col. 1, under Harting, read 18 loads, 1 qr. @ qr. 25/2½ for 25/1½.

On p. 43, col. 1, last line, before @ 40/. 42/8 read M. for N.

On p. 53, col. 2, under Harting, delete the word 'load' in Nov.

On p. 65, col. 1, under London—Bear Key, delete Dec. 22. @ 30/. 36/.

On p. 90, col. 2, under London—Bear Key, for June 12 following Dec. 15 read Jan. 12.

On p. 130, col. 2, before Oct. 8, insert Malt.

On p. 156, col. 1, under London—Mark Lane, at the foot, delete Malt, and insert it before 'Oct. 3' in col. 3.

On p. 185, col. 1, under Rye, read Sept. 30, @ 22/. 24/.

On p. 241, under heading Rape Seed, l. 3, for the entries read but entries.

On pp. 249–51, under the heading Brandsby, instead of pt. read ounce. Where no measure is quoted the price is generally by the bushel. London prices, however, are by the quarter.

On p. 249, col. 3, last line, for molotto read moratto.

On p. 250, and throughout the book, for Whareham read Wharram, which is the modern spelling of the village.

On p. 250, col. 4, for nonpareil peas read nonpareil beans.

On p. 356, col. 4, under 1734, London, for Amadea read Annadea.

On p. 383, col. 1, under April, read 2 oz. nutmegs @ lb. 10'.

On p. 396, under heading Metals, ll. 1 and 2, omit the word 'vessels.'

On p. 423, under lace, l. 28, read Point for Print.

On p. 428, col. 1, under London, for char lawn read clear lawn.

On p. 432, col. 1, under Harrogate, for fine clean lawn read fine clear lawn.

On p. 433, col. 2, under 1789, Brandsby, June, read black lawn gauze sash for back lawn gauze sash.

On p. 434, col. 2, under Brandsby, Feb. and Sept., for guild read quilled.

On p. 470, col. 1, l. 2, for little read Lisle.

On p. 478, col. 1, under Brandsby, Feb., for Pair sick gloves read Pair silk gloves.

On p. 557, col. 4, for nonpareil peas read nonpareil beans.

On p. 604, col. 2, last line but one, for 6 meadow and house read and meadow and house.

On p. 639, l. 4, for £10 15/ 6d. read £10 5/ 6d.; and, l. 11, for £27 4/ 10d. read £26 14/ 10d.

I have only to add that those who are interested in the variations of English dialects or the growth of common phrases and expressions will find much interesting matter among the entries contained in this volume.

TABLES OF PRICES.

TABLES OF THE PRICES OF AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE.

GRAIN.

IN the following tables of the price of Grain, the evidence of each year is, as in the preceding volumes, ranged under five heads: I. Wheat; II. Barley and Malt; III. Oats and Oatmeal; IV. Rye; V. Beans, Peas, and Vetches. Malt and Peas are again designated by the letters M. and P., and when these letters are not inserted, the entry will be understood to be of Barley or Beans as the case may be.

It must not be forgotten that in recording the dates of entries the year is always reckoned from one Michaelmas to another, so that the volume opens at Sept. 29, 1703, and ends Sept. 29, 1794. This course was adopted in the first volume of the History of Prices and Agriculture, and of course has been maintained throughout. The reason is given on page 3 of volume VI.

The evidence taken from the four towns of Oxford, Cambridge, Winchester, and Windsor, is of the price taken for the corn rents, allowed to be claimed by the institutions connected with those places under the Act of 1576. The prices are naturally the highest in the market, and refer to the best quality of grain. The variations in price between these and the ordinary purchases illustrate probably the utmost divergence of the market¹.

The measure of quantity in this century approaches uniformity more nearly. Few entirely anomalous measures are recorded, the variations in amount also are less frequent. The All Souls prices are, however, 9 gallons to the bushel, as are the Eton prices. My father states in his sixth volume that he was informed by the officials of the Eton treasury that their quarter was always the same as that of Winchester, while the Bursar of that College had told him that in reckoning the Winchester rents the tradition has always been to add a sixteenth to the quantity.

Entries appear under the year 1728-29 of prices at Falmouth and Looe. The Falmouth bushel is 22 gallons, the Looe 18; but they are reduced to the normal 8 in the text.

¹ Until 1776. St. John's College, Cambridge, has six rent-days in the year, after that it only has four at the usual quarters.

The load is still found in the South of England, and on Johnson's land the account is in combs, apparently equal to the bushel.

The Portsmouth entries, on the analogy of the last volume, are from the assise of bread.

Those marked Lloyd or Ll. are from Mr. Lloyd's collection and are Oxford prices. Those marked T. are from J. G. Tetley's book and are probably Yorkshire.

The All Souls accounts include the 6*d.* a bushel duty on malt which was, however, deducted from the money paid.

HAY AND STRAW.

In the following pages the prices for hay or straw are given without a break, except in the cases of 1739, 1743, 1782, 1787-90 inclusive, 1792, 1793. The two Universities supply the greater part of the information until 1759, when the London newspapers begin to supply the prices of hay and straw in the two markets in Westminster and Whitechapel. From June 8, 1767¹, quotations from the Haymarket at Charing Cross cease to be given regularly in the newspapers, though the market still continued to the present century. The Whitechapel hay-market continues at the present day.

The measure is usually the load or ton. In many cases, however, the prices are given by the hundredweight, as in the case of hay the number of hundredweights that go to the ton varies according as the article is classed as new or old. In the case of London, where no measure is given, the prices are calculated by the load. Hay is bought by the stone on one occasion at Brandsby, and in 1710 by the stack at Harting.

Straw is usually bought by the load, but in Brandsby it is invariably bought by the threaf, which is a measure of size, and not a weight.

Where the entry has no distinguishing title it is that of hay; straw is marked by the prefix of the letter S.

RAPE SEED.

In this volume, for the first time in our history, the entries of this seed are sufficiently numerous to tabulate under a separate heading by themselves, the entries are given in Houghton's list, vol. vi. p. 240, for the years 1694-5-6. They are all London prices, and are taken from the newspapers in the Burney collection. I have no means of saying whether they are English or foreign products 'Rape and Cole seed' is mentioned by Mortimer¹, as 'an excellent piece of husbandry and improvement of land, especially marshy or fenny lands, newly recovered from the sea, or any rich, rank fat lands.' According to him, it was grown in Lincolnshire, but the best seed was usually brought from Holland. From the Dictionary of Arts and Sciences, we gather that it was 'cultivated in abundance in some parts of England,' for the purpose of making oil. But both Mortimer and Loudon² mention the use of it as cattle and sheep food, and litter as well. The latter says that lately (1825) the price has seldom been below £30 the last. The prices are given here in some cases by the quarter, but latterly by the last alone.

MINOR PRODUCTS.

As in the last volume, so here the Miscellaneous Products of Agriculture are classified together. I have been able to add from the Brandsby accounts a number of prices of garden seeds, and some instances of purchases of quicks from the same source. Durham mustard was proverbial for its excellence, but the cultivation of the plant was apparently discontinued in that county by the end of the century.

H O P S.

THE entries of the price of hops are fairly numerous in most years, and no year is altogether unrepresented. They are chiefly from the usual sources—Oxford, London, Harting, and, as years go on and the newspapers give lists of market prices more regularly, the main source of information is the press, notably the Kentish Post. Frequently one year's crop is distinguished from another's in the same market, and, especially toward the end of the period, the locality from which the produce comes is given. For a considerable part of the century private brewing prevailed among large families and corporations, and no doubt to a certain extent among humbler circles, owing, it is said, to the excessive taxation levied on beer at the time of the war with France¹. An excise was collected on hops at the rate of 1*d.* per lb. after 1710, not, however, with the result of diminishing the amount used. During the war of American Independence the duty on hops was raised three times by an additional five per cent., but without any further alterations till the end of the century.

The terms 'fine' and 'coarse' cloth refer to the practice of bagging. The brightest and finest coloured hops, which always fetched the best price, were put into pockets or fine bagging, the brown into coarse or heavy bagging, but after 1756 these expressions gave way to the more familiar bag and pocket. The 'bag' is said to weigh about two hundred and a-half, the 'pocket' about one and a-half². The writer of the article on hops in the Dictionary of Arts and Sciences, however, seems to treat the difference as a matter of size only, and Mortimer knows nothing of the word pocket at all. In this volume, unless otherwise stated, the price is calculated by the hundredweight.

TABLES OF THE PRICES OF AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE.

STOCK.

CATTLE AND BEEF, SHEEP AND MUTTON, PIGS AND PORK, POULTRY AND GAME, HORSES.

THE same arrangement of the articles of farm produce has been preserved, except that the heading 'Boars' is omitted, as no entries appear under this head. The record is, unfortunately, even scantier than usual; only too often no record is found for years together. The authorities consulted by the author are chiefly the collegiate books of Cambridge, and for the London markets the newspapers. The King's College bursars bought beef yearly up to 1746, but after the second quarter mutton is substituted. We are, therefore, almost without quotations for mutton for the first forty years, and of beef for the remainder of the century. The London prices begin in 1773, but are not so regularly given as the prices of corn or Bank Stock. The Caryll and Pelham accounts afford little help. I feel, therefore, the more fortunate in having found among the Cholmeley papers at Brandsby a statement, almost continuous for some years, of the weekly consumption of beef, mutton, and, when in season, pork, giving not only the weight of meat purchased, but in many cases the joint by name. Lamb and veal were bought also, but, the weight not usually being given, the record is not of so much value, and only a few examples have been printed. There are several instances of the purchase of beef-heads, tongues, both beef and mutton, suet, feet, liver, &c. Live animals appear every here and there, and the Cambridge record of horses is fairly continuous for some years.

Beef and mutton are purchased by the stone or by the pound indifferently, but in the London prices the stone is the 'dead stone' of 8lb., in nearly every other case the 'live stone' of 14lb. The Cambridge prices are those of the 'fercula' or dishes, three of which go to the stone of 14lb.

TABLES OF THE PRICES OF AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE.

BUTTER, CHEESE, EGGS, CREAM, &c.

THE information under this head is small, especially in the latter part of the first half of the century. Nearly all the entries are of the South of England at the beginning, and of the North at the end of the period.

Butter is usually sold by the pound, or by the firkin, the latter being most frequent in Yorkshire. Sometimes the stone, the cwt., the nail, or the dozen lbs. is given. On two occasions, at Harting, and once at Oxford, the stone is equal to eight lbs., but usually fourteen is the equivalent. Eggs are measured by the 'hundred,' which is always, in the case of eggs, 120. There are some entries of grease, for lucubrate or medicinal purposes.

Cheese is sold by the lb., the cwt., or the stone, the cwt. of Leicester and Market Harborough being composed, by custom, of 120 lbs. It is specified as Double Gloucester, Gloucester, Cheshire, Norfolk, Warwick, Cheddar, Newbury, Guyere, Parmesan, Sulton, Old Milk, New Milk, &c. The number of cheeses is often given as well as the total weight. Unless otherwise specified the entries are of butter.

CANDLES AND TALLOW.

CANDLES are usually sold by the dozen, or by the single pound, and are distinguished as mould, cotton, wax, spermaceti. Rushlights, watchlights and tapers are also quoted. There is one entry of lamp oil. Tallow is quoted in the London market by the cwt., by the ton, and by the stone, both that of 14 lbs. and of 8 lbs. weight. Wax is quoted by the hundred, and different prices given for English and foreign wax respectively.

The entries are fairly numerous, very few years being unrepresented.

WOOL, SKINS, HIDES, AND LEATHER.

A FEW prices of wool and hides have been found among the Castle Howard and Brandsby accounts, and a number of prices of skins and leather have been added from the London newspapers. In every case at the former places the records are of sales, in the latter case they are the market prices. The wool is distinguished as long, short, tythe, Scotch and coarse, and is sold by the stone, apparently containing 16 lbs.

FUEL.

It has been thought best still to include fuel under the head of Agricultural Produce, to secure uniformity with the preceding volumes. But the proportion of entries of mineral coal is much greater in this volume, and towards the end of the period little else is recorded. Quotations from no less than twelve places are recorded, and not a single year is altogether unrepresented. Sea-coal is distinguished from pit-coal, the former, of course, being the product of the Northumbrian pits, the latter probably coming from the South Staffordshire fields. It is curious that while sea-coal is always measured by the chaldron, or divisions of the chaldron, pit-coal is weighed by the ton, the hundredweight, or the load. The supply for London came mainly, if not entirely, from the North. Coal is described as Binshaw, Hounslet, Blyth, Sunderland, Flockton, Haighmoor, Banks, Sir William Lowther's, Wedgbury, Mr. Brandling's, Newcastle, and once as stone-coals. The accounts often mention that the coal is bought for the house or for the lime-pit as the case may be, and sometimes the cost of portage is included. This generally comes to 4*d.* to 6*d.* a chaldron.

Charcoal is bought throughout the period at the two Universities, being no doubt burnt in hall. The construction of the buildings was a great hindrance to the introduction of a grate and the use of fuel requiring a draught.

Wood of various kinds was in use—faggots, kids (as they are called in the North) of furze, garsil (that is, broken boughs), espewood, &c. Turves are found at the beginning of the period, and so is sedge.

The measures employed vary greatly, the most usual quantity being the chaldron, a heaped measure containing usually in the South 36 bushels, and in the North 32. But in 1729 at St. John's it contains between 36 and 37 bushels, in 1722 apparently 40 bushels. In the North Riding the mete (16 to the chaldron) is used indifferently with the bushel. The load, further distinguished as the cartload, the fother, and the corve are also found. Charcoal is sold by the load, the sack, the bushel. In 1705, 12 sacks go to a load; in 1707, 6 bushels to a sack; but in 1726, 56 sacks go to a load, and in 1728, 5 bushels to a sack. Charcoal is also bought by the bag and the quarter. Wood is bought by the load, other kinds of fuel by the long hundred.

All entries, unless otherwise described, are of coal.

BARK.

A FEW entries of Bark from the steward's book at Castle Howard are added. The price appears to have risen slightly during the period of seven years that elapsed between the first entry and the last. The records are those of sales.

TABLES OF THE PRICES OF PROVISIONS.

FISH, SALT, BEER, WINE, FOREIGN PRODUCE, SPICES, FRUIT, ETC.

PRICES OF FISH.

A FISH diet was not popular in the eighteenth century, and even in the Roman Catholic family at Brandsby very little was consumed. Several times, however, I have found bills for salt fish, from which, as no amount is given, it is impossible to make any calculations. But even this will not account for the scantiness of the records.

The unit of weight is invariably the pound.

SALT.

THE evidence of the price of Salt during the eighteenth century is not very satisfactory. Nearly all the entries are drawn from the Cambridge records, and the uniformity of the price after 1711, combined with the regularity with which an almost equal amount is bought every quarter of the year, forcibly suggests that the purchases were made by a contract extending over a long period of time. The London prices are, of course, taken from the market quotations in the newspapers. In the Brandsby accounts alone we get an indication of the cost to the ordinary consumer.

Unless otherwise given, the price is that of a quarter.

ALE, BEER, AND PORTER.

I HAVE thought it worth while to print a few of the prices of the various malt liquors drunk during the eighteenth century. They are all drawn from the Brandsby and Castle Howard papers, as nothing on this subject was found among my father's collections. I hardly think it possible that he disregarded any quotations he found, as the eighteenth century witnessed the development of the brewing trade and the drink question. It is more probable that the colleges in whose records he searched bought little ale or beer from the common brewer, as their breweries were maintained till almost the present time. It appears that at Brandsby the brewhouse was kept going a large part of the period, and that the purchases were made either in a temporary failure of the supply, or when for some reason the home manufacture was stopped. At Castle Howard, except where they are taken from the innkeeper's books, they are generally records of sales. The liquor brewed there is said to have been of exceptional strength, and was popularly called 'the George,' after one of the Earls of Carlisle. Stories told of its intoxicating powers suggest a resemblance to the better known 'audit ale.' The brewery was only closed a few years ago.

Beer, Ale, and Porter are usually sold by the hogshead, the barrel, the gallon. I have found one purchase of a butt and two of a firkin, and the pint and the dozen are also used. There is one entry of 'table ale' and one of 'after ale.'

Unless otherwise described, the price is of a barrel, two of which go to the hogshead.

WINE.

THE records of the prices of wine in the manuscripts left by my father were fairly regular in the earlier years of our period, and sometimes even numerous. The latter years were very barren. Fortunately the Brandsby accounts supply us with an almost continuous record for the last part of the century, and even supply a few gaps in the earlier years. I am sorry to say that even with this assistance the list is not complete.

In many cases the transactions of private families with the wine merchant are given, but the prices under the head of London are, unless otherwise explained, quotations from newspapers. At least one tavern price is quoted.

Various kinds of wine are noted in the earlier years,—Sherry Florence, Lisbon, Port, Bordeaux, Canary, Claret, Palm, Saragusa, Madeira, Malmsey, Sack, Tent, Barcelona, Mountain, Rhenish, Burgundy, Pontac Lafite, Margaux, Malaga, Champagne, Annadea, Grave, Calcavella, Hock, Vidonia, Chianti, Bonencarlos, Cyprus, Straits, as well as the less distinctive white and red wine. But as the years go on the popularity of Port eclipses all the others, and at the end of the period very little else beside Port, Calcavella, and Mountain appear to have been purchased. Spirits, which rose in favour in the century, are often quoted, rum, gin, arrack, usquebaugh, and, commonest of all, brandy.

Wine is usually bought by the gallon, occasionally by the pint, the bottle, the tierce, and the anker. Port is often bought by the pipe, and may possibly have been laid down; but from the few statements of the date of the vintage, it would appear that the wine was drunk very new.

FOREIGN PRODUCE.

TEA, COFFEE, AND CHOCOLATE.

TEA rises to a position of importance in the eighteenth century, and, for the first time in this History, is given a separate table to itself. The record is fairly complete, only a few years being without any entry, though several are meagrely supplied. The London prices are quotations from newspapers, except those taken from the Steward's book of the Earl of Carlisle. The Brandsby records supply prices for many years. At first the Steward buys small quantities when he goes to York, but later on Mrs. Cholmeley deals with the grocer, who enters the items in a small book, in accordance with modern custom.

The article is sold under various names, Bohea, Congo, Souchong, Green, Pekoe, Imperial, Hyson, Gunpowder, Bloom, Cowslip, and other fancy names. The prices vary enormously, and are at times appallingly high.

Chocolate and cocoa are also bought, but the prices are not continuous. Chocolate nuts and cocoa nibs and shells are occasionally purchased. Coffee, under the various titles of Plantation, East India, Turkey, &c., is frequently quoted. The price does not vary so much as that of tea, and is much lower till just the end of the century.

Unless otherwise stated, tea is sold by the pound, coffee by the cwt.

FOREIGN PRODUCE.

SPICES AND FRUITS.

THE entries under this head are not numerous, and there are several years unrepresented in the list. The prices are taken mostly from London during the earlier part of the century, and are generally market prices. The Brandsby papers supply nearly all the information during the latter half of the period. These figures are taken from the shopping book of the grocer with whom the family dealt in York, and give, of course, the retail price paid by an ordinary consumer in the provinces. The Castle Howard prices are mostly taken from the housekeeper's book.

In most cases, the prices given are those of the ounce, pound, or cwt.

TABLES OF THE PRICES OF MATERIALS.

IRON, IRONWORK, AND NAILS.

UNDER this heading are entered such prices of iron or iron implements as have been collected. They are mainly of two kinds, the market quotations of iron and steel by the cwt., and the items of the blacksmiths' bills in which the cost per pound of wrought or cast iron work is given. There are also a few prices of wire work by the foot. The entries are not very numerous, though only twenty-seven years are wholly without any prices. During the last half of the period the papers at Brandsby supply by far the greater part of the information, the articles being supplied by the local blacksmiths, who quotes the weight and the price in his bill. They are mainly agricultural and domestic implements.

A number of prices of nails are given, and the account often states the uses to which they are to be put, as garden, lead, lath or slate.

METALS.

THE entries in this table comprise lead, pewter vessels, solder, copper and brass vessels, occasionally gold-leaf, quicksilver, guineas, tin, and several times silver plate. The price is often that of old metal sold.

Lead is bought by the pound, the hundredweight, and the fother, and, when run into pipes, by the foot or yard. It is designated as new lead, old lead, cramp lead, mason's lead, sash weights, sheet lead, and mold pipes, and occasionally it is sold ready cast into pumps or milk bowls.

There is one entry of brass wire by the oz.

Unless otherwise designated the material referred to is lead.

GLASS.

ONLY a very few prices of glass have been discovered from which it is possible to deduce anything. The glaziers' bills, which are very numerous among the Brandsby papers, too often omit to give any unit from which reckonings can be made. Crown, fine, and common appear to be the qualities usually bought.

STONE.

ENTRIES of the price of stone are few and, after the first ten years of the period, irregular. The chief source of information is the record of the repairs to Westminster Abbey. The unit is the load, the ton, the yard, the foot, and the bushel, according as the material is used for road-making, building, or paving. Sometimes the stones are bought ready shaped into mantelpieces, chimneys, corbels, or flags, rigging, hearthstones, &c.

Stone is described as Burford and Portland ashlar or skew, Purbeck, Ketton, Reigate, Grimston, Guildford, Hildenley, freestone, firestone, healing, &c. There are some entries of marble for decorative purposes. One entry of a millstone is given.

LIME.

THE entries of lime are not very numerous, and many years are altogether unrepresented. During the early part of the century the quotations are chiefly from the south, where it is sold by the load and the hundred, or in Northumberland by the fother and the boll. After a gap of some years the prices are exclusively Yorkshire, where it is generally sold by the chaldron. On three occasions it is bought by the kiln, and four times by the quarter. It is usually bought for building, but once at least it is certainly bought for agricultural purposes.

LATHS.

THERE were few prices of laths found among my father's papers for this period, and those were entered under the head of timber; but, in conformity with the practice followed in previous volumes, I have given such quotations as there were under a separate heading, together with those extracted from the papers at Brandsby. The distinctions made in earlier periods, of hart and sap, are again found, as well as several new ones, such as slate, pantile, tile (or tillate), white plank, long pantile, long slate, plaster, fir, pine and split. These are often distinguished by their length in feet. They are bought by the thousand and the bunch, which measure is always supposed in the following tables where no other designation is given. It appears, as before, to have contained a hundred.

TIMBER AND BOARD.

QUOTATIONS of timber of various kinds are given. It is bought, as in previous volumes, by the ton, the load, the hundred, and the foot, and is oak, elm, beech, ash, mahogany, and red, white, or yellow deal, being in most cases sawn. Sometimes it is bought ready made up in window sashes, &c. It is distinguished as Norway oak, and Arundel, Christiania, Petersburg, or Holmstrand deals. There are, again, several prices of wainscot.

A large number of prices of coppice and underwood, generally by the acre, are given; on one occasion sleepers and pit timber appear, and elsewhere spokes, posts, roomsteads, and cogs for the mill.

The timber and wood prices of Cambridge are almost always of sales.

The sawn timber is described as planks, battens, wreck deals, clean deals, single deals, whole deals, dram deals, double quarters, boards, stock deals, sides, and the length in feet and the thickness in inches, rough or clean, is often added.

BRICKS, TILES, AND SLATES.

ENTRIES of bricks and tiles are not very numerous, even in the years when most building was going on at Brandsby and Whareham, as stone was so plentiful at both places, especially the former. Tiles are quoted more frequently.

Bricks, which are usually bought by the thousand or the hundred, are described as Ely, Stow, rubbing, white, stock, and common. Tiles are described as roof, rig, pan, paving tiles, and as squares. There are also some entries of slate.

Unless otherwise designated the entries are of bricks.

TABLES OF THE PRICES OF TEXTILE FABRICS.

LINEN AND COTTON.

I HAVE endeavoured in the present table and in that immediately following to distinguish among the entries of textile fabrics between those which are made from the vegetable products, and those which are made from animal substances. To do this it has been necessary to alter slightly the method adopted in previous volumes, and some few entries made in my father's manuscripts have been transposed to another heading. The change was made necessary by the addition of a number of quotations from the Brandsby papers, and it is in many ways an undoubted advantage. But it would be still more satisfactory could I be always sure that I have not mistaken the nature of some of the more obscure materials; which are either not made at all now, or are made of a different material than formerly. Occasionally, too, some articles are prepared with a warp and a weft of different substances. It must be understood, therefore, that the distinction must not be pressed too hard.

Under the present heading I have entered prices of holland, calico, diaper, cambric, huggaback, damask, ticking, sheeting cloth, cranky, muslin, shirting, long and broad Hessian canvas, dowlas, towelling, gulix holland, dimity, fustian, lining, nankeen, minnonet, lawn, Irish cloth, harden, cherry-derry, drill, check, printed cotton, swanskin, Swiss linen, clear lawn, cotton velvet, China cotton, buckram, silicia, thicksett, cord, Jaconet muslin, mull muslin, sacking, muslin gauze, Russia linen, gimp, duck, cheney, strapping, jean, Suffolk hemp, French quilting, ferret, hempen, huswife linen, Drogheda sheeting, muslinet, haircloth.

Several kinds of lace are given—Print, Brussels, Mechlin, Swiss, Valenciennes Edging.

The price is usually given by the yard or ell, though sometimes the web and the piece are given. Unless otherwise explained the price is always that of a yard.

But many of the articles bought are not measured, and are quoted as towels, surplices, sheets, handkerchiefs, napkins, tablecloths, neckcloths, shirts.

A few entries of thread are given, usually by the ounce.

CLOTHING.

WOOL AND SILK.

THE following pages contain such entries of the prices of wool and silk fabrics as have been collected. Some of the articles are not, strictly speaking, used for clothing, but are used in upholstery, or other domestic purposes, but the greater part are materials for male or female attire. There are quotations of cloth, distinguished as plain, broad, mixed, or dyed various colours, silk of various colours, and ribands, shalloon, satin, lustring, padowa, padasoy, mantua, plading, stuff, shagareen, drugget, durant, Colchester baize, linsey, Persian, kersey, cutteney, taffety, checked rosetta, alamode, brocade, Scotch plad, sarcenet, camleteen, serge, German serge, Helmsley grey, tabby, sergedesoy, baragon, allopeen, Genoa velvet, silk grogram, gauze, shag, duffen, Ducape, armoise, Rusey, flannel, figured orrice, poplin, gold braid, frieze, sagathy, armozeen, chever de freez, seven-thread dinim, ash martinique, stripe, crape, ganage, beaver, tiffany, kerseymere, mode, French net, calimanco, bombazeen, moreen, silk gimp, pennistone, statue galloon, stormont, carsinet, barry moreen, sash, hunter's cloth, wolsey. Many of these terms are further qualified by the addition of such epithets as superfine, milled, best, fine.

In addition to these, I have added a few prices of complete garments, and several prices of gold and silver lace. Occasionally the prices of worsted line and sewing silk are given.

Nearly all the quotations are taken from private accounts, but sometimes the market prices have been extracted from the London newspapers.

The articles are usually measured by the yard or the ell, rarely by the piece or web. The sewing silk is sold by the ounce.

ROPE.

A FEW entries of rope, and line of various kinds, are given below. Rope is bought chiefly for purposes of scaffolding, but a few quotations of bell-rope are given. It is usually bought by the pound or the yard.

I have been able to extract from the papers at Brandsby a few more entries, chiefly of whip or sash-cord, or 'band,' which it must be remembered is used in Yorkshire for any kind of cordage.

TABLES OF THE PRICES OF LABOUR.

I HAVE added to those entries collected by my father, a considerable number of prices of labour both by day and by piece, chiefly from the North and East Ridings of Yorkshire. As in former volumes where two figures are given the first is of the number of workmen, the second the number of days: where only one figure is given it is of the number of days.

C. stands for carpenter. M. for mason. W. for woman.

I have reserved for the end of the tables some entries of the rates of pay, and number of days worked by some artisans who seem to have been more or less continuously employed on the Brandsby estate, in order to give some idea of the proportion of working days in the year in which those persons had employment.

ADDENDA.

SINCE preparing the foregoing tables, further evidence has been collected, and I have been able to fill up some of the gaps that were left in them, and to add other figures in corroboration. The same method has been adopted as in the earlier pages, except where explanation is furnished of any change.
